Whitney M. Young, Jr.

Biography and Life of Service

Whitney M. Young, Jr. was born on July 31, 1921, in Lincoln Ridge, Kentucky, a middle child with two sisters. His mother was a teacher and his father, the Principal of the Lincoln Institute, an African-American preparatory school. He attended Kentucky State Industrial College before working as a teacher himself and then serving in World War II overseas, where he acted as a bridge between black and white servicemen. Young met his college sweetheart, Margaret Buckner, in 1944, and the couple went on to have two children. Upon his return to the states, Young earned his Social Work Masters from the University of Minnesota. He went to work for a few years with the Urban League of St. Paul, with the organization making strides in placing African Americans in previously whites-only employee positions.

He became Executive Secretary of the League's Omaha branch in 1950 and thus was at the forefront of racial integration in the region. Then in the mid-1950s, Young took a position as Dean of Atlanta University's School of Social Work, remaining actively involved in the Civil Rights Movement and heading the state branch of the NAACP.

Young was appointed Executive Director of the National Urban League in 1961. He was instrumental in saving the League from financial ruin and handling significant overhauls of the organization's structure, grandly increasing its budget, and staff size. The League, at Young's behest and despite reservations from some benefactors, became a co-sponsor of the historic 1963 March on Washington. The League was also a significant factor in the process of racially integrating staff for a variety of big-company jobs nationally.

Young had access to the U.S. President's Office and was a close advisor to Lyndon B. Johnson. Young became known for his Domestic Marshall Plan, which was thought to have helped shape the President's policies, and also received the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1968.

After visiting troops in the Vietnam War, which he eventually publicly opposed, Young established a Veteran Affairs department for the League. He was also a writer, having penned the books To Be Equal (1964) and Beyond Racism: Building an Open Society (1969) as well as a popular syndicated newspaper column. His wife was also an author, writing books for children.

Young died on March 11, 1971, at the age of 49, while attending a conference in Lagos, Nigeria. He is believed to have drowned while swimming at a beach, suffering a brain hemorrhage.

Whitney M. Young, Jr. spoke to the 58th National Annual Meeting of the Boy Scouts of America. At that time, he challenged the BSA to tackle the "unfinished task of making real the dream of justice and equality" for American youngsters. This challenge led to a more inclusive organization and an Annual Award in his honor.

By Unlocking the POWER of EDUCATION

"Every man is our brother, and every man's burden is our own. Where poverty exists, all are poorer. Where hate flourishes, all are corrupted. Where injustice reins, all are unequal."

Chandi Chapman, WTAE Pittsburgh's Action News 4 Mistress of Ceremonies

Chandi Chapman is a multi-national award-winning and multi-Emmy award-winning anchor/reporter for Pittsburgh's Action News 4. Chandi's Mid-Atlantic Emmy wins and nominations have highlighted breaking news, weather, combating the heroin epidemic, confronting bullying in schools, fighting racial inequality, and uncovering the culture behind our favorite cuisines. They have also focused on her community service and her skills as a writer.

When Chandi worked in Allentown, Pennsylvania she was given a proclamation from the city for being the first African American female anchor at WFMZ-TV. She earned two National Association of Black Journalists Salute to Excellence Awards for her story illustrating how all races came together to fight discrimination in the 1940s. Chandi has won numerous Associated Press and state broadcast association awards, including Best TV Personality. She was one of The New Pittsburgh Courier's Women of Excellence. Her reporting has also been featured on national television shows. Chandi has held positions in the industry that include producing, editing, shooting, web producing, assignment desk duties, and managing.

Chandi started working at WTAE-TV in Pittsburgh while finishing up her degree in communication at the University of Pittsburgh. There she worked on the assignment desk and produced newscasts. She's excited to be back in the area working at the station that helped her get started in the industry. She enjoyed producing and learning all aspects of the business, but Chandi yearned to be a reporter.

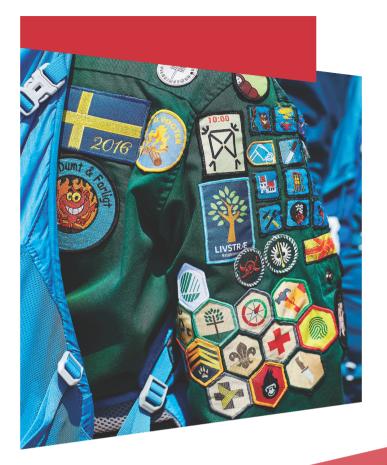

So it was off to Youngstown, Ohio where she was a producer/reporter. Chandi also worked in Steubenville, Ohio at WTOV-TV where she was a full-time reporter and had the opportunity to fill in anchoring. Then she decided to go to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina where she anchored several newscasts, and learned to shoot and edit. She was on the investigative team and was an education reporter.

Before coming back to her home state, Chandi was a morning anchor and consumer reporter for WTVM-TV in Columbus, Georgia. Chandi said the best part of being a journalist is "affecting others in a positive way and being able to find out valuable information and give that knowledge to those who would otherwise not have the chance to learn from it."

While attending high school, Chandi was involved in numerous activities and clubs and held several pageant and scholarship program titles, including Lawrence County Junior Miss. Chandi was the first African-American to hold the title of Lawrence County Junior Miss and the first person to win the talent portion doing martial arts. Chandi has been the only person to win Lawrence County Junior Miss, Pennsylvania's Homecoming Queen, and place in America's Homecoming Queen in the same year.

Chandi enjoys engaging in the community by visiting schools and universities to talk to students about journalism. She has been involved in Circles in Columbus, a part of a national movement to end poverty, and Girls, Inc, an organization that helps young women, especially those from low-income households. She volunteers to host and judge programs from national organizations to local churches. Her volunteerism was also one of the reasons Chandi grabbed the attention of the Pittsburgh magazine and was named one of the top 25 most beautiful people in the publication.

Outside of the newsroom, Chandi enjoys cooking, traveling, watching mystery and comedy movies, and practicing martial arts whenever she gets a chance. She's been studying Tae Kwon Do since she was 6 years old and received her black belt when she was 9 years old and is currently studying Tang Soo Do.

IN LOVING MEMORY

RONALD CURRY

MAY 9, 1942 - SEPTEMBER 11, 2023

The Scouting career of Ronald Curry began when he joined a Cub Scout pack at A. Leo Weil Elementary School in the Hill District. He later joined a Boy Scouts Troop in the east end of Pittsburgh, and several years later returned to scouting as a volunteer in the Three Rivers District (formerly Allegheny Trails Council). In this district, he served as Vice Chairman of Training, Training Chairman, and District Commissioner.

Ron, as he was often called, was trained in both Cub Scout and Boy Scouts programs. His advanced leadership Wood Badge training was a desirable skill set on the frontlines of volunteer scouting, and a course open only to Scouting volunteers and professionals.

Acknowledging these accomplishments, the northeast region of the Boy Scouts selected him to staff three Wood Badge courses (Antelope) and lead numerous Cub Scout committees. Over his years with the Boy Scouts, Ron served as Course Director for both the University of Cub Scouting and the Rites of Passage Camporee, attended seven National Jamborees as Assistant Scoutmaster, and served as Scoutmaster for the Scout Reach Juvenile Diversion Troop. Ron was a merit badge counselor and taught merit badge classes for Alpha Phi Omega, a Boy Scouts-related fraternity. He was also a member of the Order of the Arrow, reserved for highly honored campers.

As Scout Leader, Ron received the Silver Beaver Award and was selected as Urban Scoutmaster of the Year by the Greater Pittsburgh Council Urban Emphasis Committee. He also received a District Award of Merit and the nationally recognized Whitney M. Young Award for outstanding service in the development and implementation of Scouting opportunities for youth from rural or low-income urban backgrounds.

He attended Central State College (Wilberforce, OH) before transferring to the University of Pittsburgh where he earned both B.A. and M.P.A. degrees. Later in his career, he earned a second graduate degree in Education from Slippery Rock University. Following a lengthy career with the Department of Corrections / Education Department, he retired in 2005. His exemplary volunteerism extends beyond scouting to his church, Grace Memorial Presbyterian, and his beloved fraternity, Omega Psi Phi.

During Ron's 60-year marriage to (his widow) Carolyn, their happiest moments were the births of their three children: Carla Dennis, Ron Curry, Jr., and Brooke Spencer. Four grandchildren (Sean, Morgan (Tim), Hunter (Daniel) and Bennett), and five great grandchildren (Ryan, Simeon, Torrin, Aurelia and Delaney) bring them laughter and joy.
